

Future Plans of Undergraduate Degree Earners: AY 2022-2023

In addition to the undergraduate student exit survey that is completed as part of the application for graduation, students are also asked to complete a brief survey (called the “Cap and Gown Survey”) in April when they pick up their caps and gowns for the May graduation ceremony. A key question on the survey asks students, “What is MOST LIKELY to be your main activity or activities upon graduation?”¹ Students are presented with a list of possible activities and they may select all that apply to their situation. This question on the survey was completed by approximately 571 of the 1,155 undergraduates who earned a degree in academic year 2022-2023 (i.e., a 49.4% response rate). Figure 1 shows the percentage of students that indicated each activity as a main activity upon graduation.

Note: Percentages do not add up to 100% because respondents could select more than one activity. The employment and graduate study categories are based on responses to questions that originally asked about part-time and full-time status in these categories; percentages may reflect students who indicated both part-time and full-time status.

Because the Cap and Gown Survey is administered prior to graduation, it is important to note that responses do not precisely reflect eventual outcomes.
